Our Greatest Gift Returned to God

Recently we celebrated World Day of Prayer for Vocations. It made me stop and think about the decisions I had made in my own life and how I had dreamed and accepted the role meant for me. When considering the role of a priest, we cannot just outline the things he does; it is what he is that matters first and foremost. A priest first of all is a baptized man who has heard God calling him to a particular role in the Church – that of ministerial priesthood. After usually about six or seven years training he is ordained. Being ordained, or ordination, is a sacrament; that is a special blessing from God which makes an inner change in the man. Another word for this sacrament is ‘Holy Orders’. When a man receives Holy Orders, he is configured to Christ, which means that when he carries out his ministerial work he is acting in the power of Christ, and not in his own power. We call this a special grace of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit could be described as God’s power, energy and wisdom. In the most profound way possible, ordination creates a new man, one who, if living his vocation (calling) faithfully, can say with St. Paul: ‘It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me.’ He is changed not because of what he can do, but because of what he has become. The Catechism of the Catholic Church (CCC) describes Holy Orders as ‘The sacrament through which the mission entrusted by Christ to his apostles continues to be exercised in the Church until the end of time...’ (CCC 1536).

‘Everything a priest does in his ministry flows from what he becomes at his ordination: presiding at Mass, absolving sinners, anointing the sick, proclaiming and explaining the Gospel, giving blessings, and his whole pastoral leadership of building up a local community of faith.. The priest does what he does because of what he is: a priest of Jesus Christ.’

This is why I ask each and everyone of our parishioners to pray for Priests and pray that more men will seek to give their lives to our Lord and you. May God Bless the Parishioners of Saint Michael’s Church. Pray for Vocations to be answered.

Your Pastor, Rev. Minhyun Cho

*To The Graduating Students of Palisades Park
Class of 2019*

I just wanted to share some inner thoughts to the graduates of all the schools that our parish children are attending-as they join the graduation class of 2019.

You are leaving your schools and getting ready for new adventures and new responsibilities. Some of that is exciting and some of it is scary. Some of it is just unknown. But you can be certain of one thing. The relationships that have been so meaningful for you while you have been here are about to change radically. You have probably already started to think about this, reflecting on which school has opened the doors of opportunity for you.

Graduating students understand that things are about to change a lot. You may never have the depth of a relationship with these friends in the way that you do now. Things happen. It doesn't mean the friendship wasn't real and important. Things just change from year to year and from season to season of your life. Today you may be thinking, "nothing will change with her, we will still be the same." "I'll still see her every day." "I'll still have classes with him." And you may be right. It may not change. But sometimes even the ones that look like they will be the same will never be the same.

There are two really natural responses to changes like this. The first response is grief. It's just sad. That is how I feel this time every year as some of my favorite students graduate and leave the school. I'll have to grieve again in about two weeks when another group of students will leave here and the relationships that used to depend upon daily lunches will depend upon daily status updates. It's appropriate for you to grieve the loss of relationships that comes with graduating or moving on from how it's been this year. In most cases, the relationship will continue in some new form. You can still grieve what is lost, even while there is something ahead.

I expect that you understand the grief part. Even while you are celebrating graduation, no one has to remind you to be sad about what you are losing, this comes natural. But there is something that you might miss if you aren't careful. Whether you are graduating or whether relationships are just changing before you return next year, this is a time for gratitude. Think about all the ways that the people around you have enriched your life this year.

Maybe you have felt real acceptance for the first time. Maybe you have laughed harder than you ever have. Maybe you have had friends stand by you in laughed harder than you ever have. Maybe you have had friends stand by you in some of the most difficult struggles of your life. When you have experienced that kind of beauty, the most important thing that you can do is give thanks to God.

It's the most basic kind of prayer that we can offer...a prayer of gratitude for what God has given. It's the very first prayer that we taught our son when he was 2 years old: "Thank you for this day. Thank you for this food. Thank you for each other." Today is the day to thank God for the people that He has put in your life this year. If you are graduating it is a day to thank God for four years of friends.

The most important thing that you can do during this graduation season is simple: Whether you think these relationships are going to change or whether you plan on things to go on just as they have, today is a time to prayer together, to thank God for your time together, and consider the great gift that your friends have been to you this year.

So take some time today to gather with those special friends and pray... thanking God for their friendship. If you are graduating, this may also be a time to go back to some of those old friendships that have changed over the years and thank God for the time that you had.

And don't forget to hug each other .

Grace and Peace,
